The Dental Implants by Emrald Emar

Article published on December 2nd 2011 | Health

The artificial roots that are placed in the jaw of a person and acts as a support to the artificial teeth are termed as dental implants. They are becoming really popular in modern times because of the advantages they offer. They do not require adhesives, do not slip in mouth and gives you the freedom to chew like natural teeth. A study revel that in 98% cases, implants provide services for the entire life of the person. The only condition for teeth implants is health jaw bone.

The Required Conditions

Probably the only necessary condition to carry out the procedure is the presence of health gums and jaw bone. These are really necessary as they act as a support for the new permanent members of the oral cavity. Depending on the condition of your gums and jaw bone the dentist can replace one or more teeth with implants.

The Cost

The cost of teeth implants depends on a number of factors including dentist, the dental lab he is in collaboration with and the city. Like, you might be able to get teeth implants at a much lower price in the city of Essex then London. Also, while going in for teeth implants, you must carefully analyze all your options before selecting a dentist who can serve you well. Setting a budget before you go for treatment would surely help in keeping the expenses to minimum. You might need to pay somewhere around Â£300 to Â£4000 for one implant. The high price certainly makes you look for less expensive options. The entire amount would be paid from your pocket as most insurance companies do not include cosmetic dentistry in their plans. However, there are number of dentists in Essex who offer special payment schemes for patients. They can pay in small installments instead of paying the entire amount in one go.

Taking care of Implants

The implants work and feel same as the original teeth and thus need equal amount of care as well. Dentists recommend to floss and brush the implants after every meal. However, if you are too busy in the office work and cannot brush after every meal, you must still brush at least twice for them to stay in good shape for longer duration of time. The process of brushing is same as you do for the natural teeth. Also, like natural teeth, implants also stain over time and in order to maintain proper hygiene, you must visit your dentist at least once a year.
