Nadi is home to Fiji's International Airport so it is often the first stop for travellers who want to explore the area. As well as fly to Nadi, many people also choose to stay in Nadi hotels. People who choose to stay here will not be disappointed; there are a range of things to do in the surrounding area (even if visitors are travelling on a budget).

Nadi is not the biggest city in Fiji to visit, but it is nonetheless packed with people and things to do. Here, it is possible to find everything from budget hotels (for travellers who want a cheap but great experience in Fiji) to top beach resorts.

Nadi has an excellent, cheap bus service that can be used to travel between Nadi and the surrounding area, plus to visit all of Nadi's own attractions.

The local beaches are a place not to be missed. Here, many activities can be done including sunbathing, swimming, diving and fishing. Going to the beach in Nadi is a fun day out for all of the family.

There are several sightseeing tours that take place in and around Nadi, from city tours to boat cruises, so that you can be sure of finding something for everyone to enjoy.

You can experience fantastic dining at one of the many restaurants and bars in Nadi, Fiji. In Nadi, there are a range of places that sell popular local and international cuisine both in the town centre and on the beachfront. Here, it is possible to eat Japanese food at Kaikoku's, Indian food at Ashiyani's or fine dining at Chef's Rest, just to name a few.
