Stun gun: a tool to protect yourself by Jenny Lumet

Article published on July 27th 2012 | Self Help Techniques

Stun guns were launched in the market before two decades. It can be defined as an electrical device of self defense which produces high voltage and gives a shock to assailant. It temporarily stops the movements of the person who is hit by this weapon.

Mechanism of stun guns

A loop is made in the body by electrical charge when stun gun is used for hitting someone. The basic idea which works behind is jumping throughout the body i.e. from the first probe to other one. If hitting is correct then contact points will be covered and then there will be more damage to assailant.

Help of stun guns in defense of women

Stun guns can also be used as self defense products for women as it disables or interrupt nervous system of a attacker for few seconds so that the women have enough time for escaping herself. The main reason behind disability of attacker is production of high voltage as he can struck by the stun gun.

Categories of stun guns

There are different categories of stun guns which are used by people differently according to the rules and requirements. Civilian can purchase a stun gun which can cover the range of 15 feet and can produce voltage only 5000,000 for self defense purpose. Whereas the range and voltage of the model of stun gun completely differs for Military and Police. These guns are used by them against the people to create any disturbance in law. Stun guns are becoming need of today because the world is getting very dangerous as time passes so one must have self defense products for protecting himself.
