For faux trees with palm leaves on the short side, consider an artificial Raphis palm with thick, verdant leaves, or a faux bamboo palm with daintier short palm leaves that look like they've been plucked right from the jungle. A feeling of feathery freshness radiates from the graceful branches of the silk Areca palm, as well as the fake Kentia palm. These striking artificial trees are customer favorites for obvious reasons. It's easy to envision these silk palms in the corner of a formal living room, or situated in the entrance to a professional office. If you prefer an unusual look, consider purchasing a faux ponytail palm tree. The long, verdant leaves of this silk palm are just unkempt enough to be a little wild, but still elegant. Or, try a fake Cycas palm, which is a stout, dense shrub that will fill those vacant corners beautifully. Your faux palm will come potted or unpotted, depending on the tree. Some come in decorative planters, but unpotted palm trees can easily be anchored in your favorite decorat ive planter. As you consider which fake palm trees will best suit your lifestyle, don't hesitate to contact our knowledgeable staff with your questions.
