Summary: Want to fly on budget? Book your flight on right time at right place to get the best market price. Conducting an online research and planning your trip in advance are major factors to be considered. After all, everyone wants to save some bucks.

With more and more people opting for air-journey, the war among airlines is intensifying. Every day, they come up with new deals and discounts on flights to lure travelers. And it's the traveler who reaps benefit from this war, getting best services at reasonable rates. However, it's imperative to look at right place on right time to get exactly what you're looking for.

Gone are the days, when you had to visit a travel agent to plan for a trip. You spent entire day wandering one door to another to find a deal that suits your needs and budget. Now with internet technology spreading its wings wide, you can book flights and plan the entire trip sitting in your living room. Searching online, you will find a number of travel portals offering multitude of deals in all categories. Whether you want to book flights to Bangalore, a holiday package to Singapore or Manali hotels, you'll find a number of options to choose from. However, certain factors are there you must consider booking your suited deal.

It's suggested to book flights on weekday, when it comes to find deals at cheap rates. Wednesday is the day when airlines check out vacant seats available on the planes and release them on cheaper rates. So, if possible, book your flights after Wednesday midnight.

As per experienced travelers, there may be a significant difference in ticket price that in morning and on the evening. So if you book flights early in the morning, you may get them on cheap rates.

When you plan a travel, plan it well in advance. The earlier to fly-date you reserve, the cheaper price you get. Usually, airlines sell first few tickets at low price, so you can save a good amount purchasing among them. Also, this helps you avoid the hassles of last-minute booking.

Travelling off-season is also the certain way to get good flight deals. If you visit a destination during its peak tourist season, you'll surely get tickets at higher price compare to the one booked during off-tourist season. Flying at time of summer vacations, winter offs and on special events like Christmas and New Year is always costly. So, if you want to save money, you should plan an off-season trip.

While booking tickets online, you have two options: either booking through a travel agent or directly at the website of airline. The later one is a puzzling and time-consuming option, as you have to visit one site to another to find rates of different airlines. And when you book through a travel portal, you can find flight schedule, services and price of various airlines at a single page. In case you need to book flights in bulk, you can get a handsome discount from the travel agent. Booking flights through a travel agent is completely a hassle-free and reliable option.
